

AJC Corporate Training on Antisemitism

Why should your company consider a training on antisemitism?

Antisemitism in America is rising and, in recent years, becoming more violent. Recent attacks on Jews took place in Pittsburgh, PA (2018), Poway, CA (2019), Jersey City, NJ (2019), Monsey, NY (2019), and Colleyville, TX (2022). In January 2022 alone, neo-Nazis gathered publicly, Jewish businesses and synagogue were defaced, hundreds of anti-Jewish flyers were left on driveways and in mailboxes, Jewish children were spat on, and the Holocaust was trivialized and distorted by prominent politicians and other civic leaders. New York City recorded an almost 300% spike in antisemitic hate crimes in January 2022, compared to January 2021.

American leadership—from the government to the private sector—has a critical role to play in fighting all forms of hatred, including anti-Jewish hate. That fight begins with understanding the problem as well as the rich diversity of the Jewish community, and empowering people to speak out. Education and training can foster greater sensitivity to concerns of Jewish employees and, more broadly, ensure that antisemitism is less likely to occur in the workplace.

Why AJC?

American Jewish Committee (AJC), the leading global Jewish advocacy organization, has worked with civil society and government leaders for over 115 years to combat antisemitism and other forms of hatred. With anti-Jewish hate on the rise in the U.S. and around the world, AJC has created resources to help corporations and their employees recognize antisemitism, including when anti-Israel actions become antisemitic; raise awareness; and address it using a variety of different tools. AJC also facilitates trainings on antisemitism for elected officials, law enforcement, tech platforms, corporations, sports teams, law firms, investment management firms, hospitals, higher education institutions, and non-profits.

AJC's antisemitism trainings are developed with the requesting organization's mission and culture in mind. Some trainings last one hour and are mostly instructive; others include interactive components and can run as long as three hours. We tailor our programs to best fit the needs of the audience. Each training begins with background information on defining antisemitism as well as Jewish demographic trends in the U.S., using data from AJC's 2021 State of Antisemitism in America report. Through AJC's Translate Hate glossary, we then address modern examples of antisemitism that stem from ancient and medieval antisemitic tropes. Every training ends with recommended action items to counter anti-Jewish bias both in the workplace and in society as a whole.
